Perspectives on Educational Quality SpringerLink

Alternative perspectives on educational quality are discussed by discovering the perspectives of different authors and stakeholders and by referring to different schools of thought (e.g. a humanist versus a behaviourist orientation). An important premise that results from these analyses is that facets of educational quality are amenable to empirical verification and analysis. Educational

Aboriginal Identity A Perspective on Hegemony and the

With Aboriginal education becoming a developing field of study and practice in education, the Aboriginal perspectives that may be associated with Levin s view on moral principles might be worth considering. Virtue, improvement of the human condition, and the tenets that may be associated with a principled education may be beneficial from an appropriate Aboriginal perspective when such
